Ceremony Opens Census '70 District Office

At a ceremony Thursday Vice Mayor Lester I. Bowman cut a length of computer tape, officially opening the district office in Petersburg, Va. from which the 1970 Census of Population and Housing will be directed in this area. Mrs. Barbara R. Aldridge, Manager of the district office, explained that computer tape is symbolic of the Census Bureau's modern electronic equipment that will process the data collected in the census.

This district office will be headquarters for census operations in Amelia, Appomattox, Brunswick, Buckingham, Cumberland, Dinwiddie, Fluvanna, Goochland, Greensville, Isle of Wight, Louisa Lunenburg, Nansemond, Nottoway, Powhatan, Prince Edward, Prince George, Southampton, Surry and Sussex, also Colonial Heights, Emporia, Franklin, Hopewell, Petersburg, and Suffolk.

Beginning four days before April 1, mail carriers will leave census questionnaires at each residential mailbox. Each family will be asked to fill out its questionnaire and hold it for the census taker. The enumeration of the district is expected to be completed in about five weeks after the census takers begin making calls on April 1.

There are 180 other census districts throughout the country where this method of enumeration will be used.

There are 212 other census districts in which the remaining 50 percent of the population live. These districts, for the most part, include the large cities and their suburbs. Households in these districts will also receive census questionnaires in the mail to fill out, but they will be asked to mail them back to the census office in a postage-free envelope that will accompany the questionnaire. No census taker will call at these households from which completely filled out questionnaires are returned.

The Census Bureau says that having the questionnaire in the home for several days gives the family time to assemble information about each member of the household, thus speeding up the census and providing accurate statistics.

Willing Workers Plan 20th Anniversary

The general public is cordially invited to attend the 20th anniversary of the Willing Workers Club of the Mount Shiloh Baptist Church this third Sunday evening at 3 p. m. Mrs. Lucinda Lewis, president will serve as mistress of ceremony. The New Hope Baptist Church and its pastor, the Rev. James Miller will be the special guests. Mrs. Marie Tyler will deliver the welcome address. A special feature of the program will include special recognition and honor to some of the faithful leaders of the club. Mrs. Mattie Paige will conduct this part of the program.

Several visitors attended the regular preaching services held at the Mount Shiloh Baptist Church last Sunday at 11 a. m. The pastor delivered a very informative sermon. Special music was rendered by the senior choir. The Rev. A. B. Jones assisted in the devotional services. Following the morning worship the Lord's Supper was served.

The Rev. R. G. Lawing has been asked to work among the local churches in the annual Red Cross drive. He is asking all churches to support the leaders that have been appointed to work in their communities. We trust that every one will make a liberal contribution this year. The workers are asked to make their reports during this month.

Mrs. Linda Harvey Goode is in the Lynchburg General Hospital.

The annual Union Services will be held at the Promise Land Baptist Church this fourth Sunday morning at 11 a. m.

McElroy Elected Society Pres.

Richmond – John L. McElroy Jr. of Richmond was re-elected president of the Children's Home Society of Virginia during the Society's annual meeting in Richmond Thursday Feb. 26. McElroy is director of industrial Sales and vice president of Wheat & Co.

Also re-elected to new terms were Evans B. Mansfield, executive vice president; B. Walton Turnbull, vice president and treasurer; and James E. Covington, Jr., vice president, all of Richmond. Mrs. Bernie Carter of Roanoke was also re-elected vice president and T. Foster Witt Jr. of Richmond continues his tenure as assistant treasurer.

According to Earl W. Childress Jr., executive director, the Children's Home Society placed 186 infants in adoptive homes last year. He noted, however, that because of insufficient funds the Society was forced to turn away more than 150 Virginia children in need of permanent homes.

"Last year, it was estimated that there were approximately 10,000 illegitimate births in Virginia," Childress said. "Of these, only about 2,000 found their way into permanent adoptive families."

"What happens to the other 8,000 possibly homeless or abused children? We honestly don't know," he added. "If we had adequate resources, we could find out and help alleviate many of these tragic problems."

He noted that the Children's Home Society had experienced a $38,000 deficit last year. The Society is partly supported by 43 United Givers Funds and by private solicitations in 68 non-UGF areas.

Dr. Francis J. Ryan, deputy director of Family and Child Services of Washington, D. C., told guests at the Children's Home Society meeting that adoption must become a community concern.

"We can no longer look upon over-population and large numbers of neglected children as primarily the problems of overseas nations," he said.

"Twenty-one real problems in the United States, and for many childless couples and others who want to add to their families, adoption is a logical and rewarding solution."

April Pageant

The Appomattox Jr. Woman's Club is busy making plans for the annual "Miss Appomattox" Pageant.

Invitations are extended to all interested persons, school clubs or civic organizations to enter the parade which will be held at 3:00 preceding the pageant at 8 p.m.

A number of funds and dignitaries have been asked to take part in this event set for April 19th.

If you wish more information concerning the parade contact Mrs. Eva Guill, 352-7455 or Mrs. Doris Williams, 352-7459.

Smog-Control Planned For VEPCO Trucks

The Virginia Electric and Power Company, expressing its continuing concern with air pollution abatement, today announced plans to install emission control devices on new trucks and automobiles to be purchased this year.

Vepco President John McGurn said smog - control mechanisms are to be installed on approximately 130 vehicles.

McGurn said the company decided to order the equipment on its 1970 vehicles because of Vepco's "increasing awareness and concern about environmental control." He said the cars will be used throughout the entire Vepco operating area, which includes most of Virginia, and parts of North Carolina and West Virginia.

The new evaporative emission-control system (EEC) eliminates escape of gases which volatile gasoline can be lost to the atmosphere. Basically, the mechanism will send gas vapors through the engine to be consumed with liquid fuel rather than releasing it. The device also prevents spillages due to expansion overflow.

McGurn said that installation of the anti-smog devices is only one way Vepco is striving to maintain clean air and water.

"The company began installing modern electrostatic precipitators on generating units as early as 1935 and has spent more than $16.5 million on dust collection equipment.

High efficiency precipitators to reduce emission are now used throughout the company's system. All the coal-fired units completed in the past 10 years have electrostatic precipitators with an efficiency of at least 96 per cent with the latest three precipitators pursued for 99 per cent collection efficiency.

Vepco's efforts in maintaining water quality include work on a special canal system to control water discharge at the company's new Surry Power Station at Surry County, Va.

At the site of Vepco's other nuclear power station in Louisa County, Va., a series of lagoons are planned to cool the water before it is returned to the North Anna River. This cooling lagoon system will be separated from the public reservoir and recreation areas by a series of dikes and the estimated cost of the reservoir, dam, dikes and road relocations necessary for this environmental protection system is almost $50,000,000.

In addition, the reservoir will provide improved flow under drought conditions, peak flood protection for the downstream users and recreational benefits to the entire area.
